Gentlemen,

Mr John Jents tells me the City has discontinued paying for killing of the English Sparrow and instead of so much a bird he will kill them off for $10.00 a year, this would only about buy the ammunition. he has been able to keep them down to only a few, but they increase so fast that if you don't keep after them every year they will be as bad a pest as they are at San Bernardino, Riverside and Los Angeles where the people would give thousands of dollars if they could get rid of this bird. For this ten dollars a year the City should not allow this pest to get a start. If they get a good start they can't ever be killed off besides they chase all other birds away.

Truly Yours,
Webb Toms,
